In the last year, the UK seems to have turned the corner on exporting. HMRC data suggested Britain’s exports have risen 8.2% to £330.5bn in the year ending March 2018. These impressive figures have been led by Scotland (a 12.1% increase), with Wales (7.1%), England (6.5%) and Northern Ireland (4.9%) all doing their part.

Even more impressively, this came as the pound rose against the dollar from $1.25 to $1.40, in theory making British goods less attractive to overseas buyers. Perhaps this was offset by the pound decreasing against the Euro, from €1.17 to €1.13, helping exports to the Eurozone.

As the clock ticks on Brexit departure day, these figures are encouraging. It’s now vital that SMEs continue to explore new markets and proactively work to establish new customers and interest.

THE UK’S TOP EXPORT DESTINATIONS

Our research reveals the top 30 destinations for UK SMEs who are currently exporting. Perhaps unsurprisingly, the USA is the biggest export destination for UK SMEs. The largest economy in the world makes for an easier export partner, thanks to the minimal language barriers and relatively low regulatory environment.

The next most important destinations – Germany, France and Ireland, are all within the EU trading bloc. In fact, our findings show that 50% of the top 20 export destinations for SMEs are currently in the EU.

In emerging markets, China and India both feature in the top 10, with the United Arab Emirates, Malaysia, Brazil, Nigeria, South Africa and Mexico all making an appearance in the top 30.
